Confidence Game Artists Baffled in Ashton

BRUNDAGE HAS TOLD UNTRUTHS
SAYS EDWARDSJudge in Waukegan
Small Trial Flays
Brundage

Judge Claire C. Edwards of Waukegan, before whom Governor Len Small was tried today accused Attorney General E. J. Brundage of circulating false propaganda tending to undermine the confidence of the people in the integrity of our courts.

Judge Edwards hit from the shoulder at Attorney General Brundage, giving him the lie direct, in a statement "To the Members of the Bar of the State of Illinois."

The statement follows:

"Since the conclusion of the case of the People vs. Len Small in June, 1922, over which I presided as Judge of the Circuit Court of this district, propaganda has been spread by Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, seeking to explain the verdict of acquittal and casting aspersions upon the court, the jury and everyone connected therewith."

"I am not unmindful of the dignity of the position I hold, and have remained silent until the present time, and would continue that policy to the end if only I were involved, but these charges tend to undermine the confidence of the people at large in the integrity of our courts."

"When the attorney general of the state makes charges as serious as those made by Mr. Brundage in a public speech at Morris, Ill., on February 19, reported in the Chicago Tribune of February 20, I feel it my duty as an officer of the state to let the people, and especially the members of the bar, know the truth."

"He charges that 'one of the balliffs in charge of the jury, one of them entrusted with the duty of keeping the jurors free from outside influences, was on the Small payroll during the trial.'"

"Again—the sheriff who hunted up the venemore for that jury selected the balliffs who were appointed to protect it."

"I charge that in making those statements Attorney General Brundage deliberately misrepresented the facts, and stated that which he knew to be untrue."

The facts are as follows: 'Council for the state objected to the sheriff or any of his deputies having charge of the jury; this objection was not resisted by counsel for the defense, and accordingly the following plan for selecting balliffs of have charge of the jury was adopted:

"Council for the state submitted a list of men acceptable to them as balliffs; counsel for the defense did likewise; and from these names the court appointed the balliffs."

"Never once during the trial did the sheriff have a word to say about who were to be balliffs, and not for a moment did a man have charge of that jury whose name was not approved by the state and defense."

"Not for one moment did a man on the state payroll have anything to do with that jury, and this was well known to the attorney general."

"Objection was also made to the jury list prepared therefor in the manner provided by law. The court thereupon submitted a plan to the attorneys for both sides, to-wit:

Radio Impulse Moves from U. S. to Poland in Twentieth of Sec.

Washington, March 12.—What was said to have been the first attempt at accurate measurement of the velocity of radio impulses was made last night by experts of the Radio Corporation.

Using a motion picture film device, a radio signal was sent as making a circuit of 8,500 miles in .054 seconds between the corporation's sending station at New Brunswick, N. J., and Warsaw, Poland.

A 14-tube receiving set with which the timing device operated, caught the signal as it came from the corporation's office in New York and again as it came back from Warsaw. The photographic record was produced by an indicator attached to the receiving set and the time was measured by the distance between the photographic impressions on the film.

CHECK OPERATOR

He Passed There He
"Settled Up."

A clever check operator worked in Ashton Saturday and Sunday but failed to get away with all of his receipts according to a report that has been made to the sheriff and chief of police here. A strange man and woman, registering at the Ashton hotel under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Clover, Clinton, Ill., according to the report, made several purchases at places of business and in payment gave checks. In each instance the blank checks on the Ashton bank were changed to read in favor of the First National bank of Dixon. As far as has been learned, the stranger passed three checks totalling $21.95, but some of these he made good when Deputy Sheriff Fred Richardson became aware of the actions of the pair.

All of the checks were signed "E. C. Frick" of Dixon and the man represented himself to be seeking a location to establish a barber shop in Ashton. The woman remained at the hotel and left Ashton Sunday night, taking a train west. Her companion also disappeared Sunday night after having made good on two of the checks and is believed to have taken a freight train out of town.

AMERICA GARBAGE
PAIL FOR EUROPE,
SAYS MENDOTA MANProhibition of All Immigration Essential He Boldly States.

The national safeguarding of America for Americans was most indelibly impressed upon the members of the Dixon Kiwanis club in a remarkable address delivered by Rev. Alfred Eells, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Mendota Tuesday noon at the regular weekly meeting of the club. The speaker, because of the forcible manner in which he presented his subject, has been invited to visit Dixon again in the near future to address a large gathering of men at the Methodist church, and has accepted the invitation.

Prohibited immigration was his first theme and Rev. Eells explained that by picking out a few of the European countries from which to prohibit immigration would arouse their enmity at once. Limited elimination of immigrants into America, he said, would offend certain nations. The only successful method is in complete prohibition.

Send Undesirables to U. S.

"Nations that have made a mess of their governments in Europe are now anxious to send their undesirables to the United States to use their influence to make a mess of our government. Take a look at our state statistics and you will find that in the state of Illinois, 90 per cent of the inmates of our penitentiaries are foreign born. It is time to stop the influx and take up the work of Americanizing those we have."

"Europe is requiring of her people that they work and have to pay their heavy debts. This is not so with the class of emigrants that are coming to our shores today. It is because work and saving is required in their homeland that they come to America. Europe today wants to hold the best of her citizenship to rebuild (Continued on Page Two)

STREET SAYS HE WAS GIVEN ROOM
BY SUPERVISORSWas Appointed By Fred
Leake and Sworn In,
He Declares.

Concerning his right to occupy a room in the court house, from which he was ordered ejected by the Board of Supervisors at their meeting last week, mention of which was made in The Telegraph at the time, Lester Street requests the publication of the following statement of his side of the case:

"My attention has been called to a report of the proceedings of the local board of supervisors in your paper last week in which my name was displayed in scare headlines. I did not think it worth answering at first, but at the request of many friends, I submit the following statement of facts."

The supervisor who made the motion reported was very badly misinformed. In 1914 Fred Leake of Amboy was elected county surveyor of Lee county. Mr. Leake lives in Amboy and immediately appointed me deputy to look after this end of the county and the office. I was sworn in before Harry Warner.

At that time the county surveyor's office was the one on the first floor now occupied by the county superintendent of highways, this office having been occupied by Mr. Neighbour and other county surveyors since the court house was built. Mr. Neighbour had just been made county superintendent of highways and as there was no such position at the time the court house was built, no provision had been made for his office. Mr. Neighbour and I therefore occupied the same office built for the county surveyor, for some years. The amount of business for each of us grew until there was not room for both of us in that small room, so we went before the board and asked them to assign us separate rooms. After due consideration, the board assigned me the room on the third floor, next to the state's attorney's office to be used as the county surveyor's office, furnishing it and finishing it up as I wanted it, at some expense. This room I occupied for about two years until last spring. Meanwhile I had been engaged in other business so that I used the office very little, only as a place to keep the records that are in the county surveyor's charge. Last spring David Spencer, who at that time was chairman of the building committee, called me up saying that they needed my room for another purpose, and asked me if I would be willing to move in the room off the circuit court room. I agreed to this, and was moved. There was no lock on the door, so the janitor put a lock on, giving me one key and keeping one. Since then I have been in the office not over half a dozen times. The last time was about six weeks ago when I went up to get some papers I had left there. At that time I

DIVORCED WIFE
RICH CHICAGOAN
HELD FOR MURDERMan's Body Found in Her Auto with Bullet Through Head.

Chicago, March 12.—A story of a gamble with death was told by Mrs. Belva Brown Gaertner, divorcee, in whose automobile W. R. Law, an automobile salesman and married, was found today with a bullet wound through the head.

They had had drinks in a cafe, said Mrs. Gaertner, who is under arrest. "On our way home we got to talking about holdup men," she said, "and I jokingly remarked that 'I bet I am a better shooter than you are.' He declared he was a wonderful marksman. Still joking, I suggested we toss a coin and that the winner shoot the loser. If the winner missed the other could have a chance to shoot the winner. There were nine bullets in the revolver—but I don't know what happened."

The revolver, police say, belonged to Mrs. Gaertner. There were bruises on her cheek and hand, a broken crystal in her wrist watch and blood stains on her gloves and clothing, the police say, indicating a struggle.

The body of Law was found crumpled in the car.

Mrs. Gaertner, a former cabaret singer known as Belle Brown, twice has been divorced.

The automobile in which Law was found slain was recently sold to her by Law, and her former husband, Gaertner, is said to have made the first payment on it.

A bottle which the police say had contained gin, was found in the car.

Chicago, March 12.—Mrs. Belle Brown Overback Gaertner, divorced wife of William Gaertner, wealthy instrument manufacturer, was arrested today after policemen found the body of Robert Law, an automobile salesman, in her.

Law was shot through the head. A pistol from which three shots had been fired and which Mrs. Gaertner said was hers, was found in the car. An empty gin bottle also was found.

Mrs. Gaertner told the police she and Law were driving when she heard as hot and her former husband steering wheel. She tried to stop the bleeding and then became frightened and fled. She was arrested in her home hysterically pacing the floor.

Her answers incoherent at first and she admitted she had been drinking, police said.

Rapid Alterations at College Ave. Grocery

The front of the Minnehan & Nichols store on Third street and College avenue underwent some rapid alterations Tuesday evening about 7:15 when a touring car driven by Edwin Hamill crashed into the building, breaking one of the large plate glass windows and tearing a hole in the wall. The driver escaped without being injured, his car being slightly damaged.

According to reports, Hamill was driving on Third street and at the corner of College avenue met Harrison Wadsworth, who was driving north, and swung out to prevent a collision. The Wadsworth car was struck and damaged and the force of the collision threw Hamill's car into the front of the store building.

COUNCIL TAKES STEPS TO MAKE
IT PERMANENTSidewalks on E. River Street Also Come in for Consideration

Commissioner Joe E. Valle was in a critical mood at Tuesday night's session of the city council and introduced two or three subjects which had to deal with bad conditions in the city. The commissioner was suffering from a large carbuncle on the back of his neck which may have had something to do with his attitude on city affairs. The first condition he found fault with was the Galena avenue arch. He told the council that he and contractors had inspected the structure after it had been erected to him that the arch was in a dangerous condition and might collapse. The council agreed that the arch had answered its intended purpose and Commissioner Charles E. Miller added that while it had been erected originally to stand for three months, it had stood almost six years.

Mayor Frank D. Palmer regretted that the county board of supervisors had failed to appropriate a sum to aid in the building of a permanent arch and suggested that each member of the council take the matter under consideration for one week or until the next meeting. It was agreed that in the meantime, Contractor W. J. Baum, who erected the arch, would be called upon to inspect the structure and report at next week's session of the council and at that time furnish a rough estimate as to the cost of a permanent all-steel structure.

East River St. Walks.

Commissioner Valle called the attention of the council to walks on East River street, which he said were impassable and dangerous. The unloading of cars of coal and other materials had been permitted for many months with the result that the cement sidewalks are broken and unfit for pedestrians, who are obliged to walk in the street, he reported. The condition is a disgrace to the city the commissioner said and asked that immediate steps be taken to remedy the situation. The council supported the commissioner in his complaint and favored immediate action to place the sidewalks in repair at once and made payable for pedestrians.

Ask About Election.

A committee of ministers and others active in the movement to close the Dixon theater and all other places of amusement on Sunday, were present and inquired as to the date of the election on this matter. Mayor Palmer stated that no date had as yet been set, but assured the committee that judges and clerks and polling places had been selected and that the election would be held not later than April 17.

The applications of James Bishop, 93 Hennepin avenue, and George Bishop, 77 Hennepin avenue, to erect signs at their places of business, were referred to the commissioner of public health and safety with power to act.

A bill to the sum of $1,600 in favor of Dixon township was ordered paid.

New York, March 12.—For some unexplained reason Frank A. Vanderlip failed to deliver a scheduled address last night.

Several weeks ago the Life Underwriters Association of New York announced he would speak on "Courage" at a dinner. He explained that his talk would touch on national politics. Asked why he failed to appear he replied: "I am not going to speak anywhere this evening."

It developed that a few days ago the association sent members the bare announcement that Vanderlip would not speak.

Juniors Victorious Over North Siders

The Junior A basketball team went up against the North Side Independents Tuesday evening and emerged victorious by a score of 15-14.

Although the A's were smaller and lighter than their opponents, this did not prevent their scoring ability.

For some reason or other most of the scoring on both sides was made in the first half, the last half being a tie each team getting 5 points apiece.

Independents
Hilliker, Schertner, Rink, Kennedy, Brenner, Rink, Edwards, Gardner.

Juniors
Glessner, Beede, Rink, Buchner, Reese, Field Goals—Rink 3, Brenner 2, Kennedy 2, Reese, Glessner, Lair, Schertner.

Scramble Supper This Evening for the Boys

The boys' bowlers and the members of the grade school basketball team are all set for their big scramble feed this evening at 6:15.

From all indications this will be the biggest feed of the season and one that not one of the boys who are invited should miss.

After the feast there will be a short program at which time Mr. Prescott, who provided a trophy in the form of a silver loving cup for the winning bowling team, will make the presentation speech.

The basketball players will come in for a short talk by Everett, Dutchman chairman of the physical department committee.

After the program those who wish will go to the gym for a game of basketball and later to the pool for a swim.

It is also possible that if the teams scheduled to bowl do not make connections those boys who wish may get a chance to roll in an informal contest.

Increased Work for Boys Board's Scheme

Tuesday night the Board of Directors met and after going over the monthly reports and regular business of the association the discussion centered around the boys work.

It was decided that every possible emphasis be placed on this department of the activities for the future, for as one member expressed himself, "if we continue the present successful program of boys' activities we will have no fear for the future welfare of the Y. M. C. A. in Dixon, financially or any other way."

The reports last night showed that during the short month of February over 5000 used the building, 16 addresses were given, 16 banquets, club suppers or dinners were served, over 1000 used the gymnasium, nearly 250 were in basketball games, over 1700 games were rolled on the alleys, over 2200 used the showers and swimming pool, and the Boys' band played at four engagements beside four regular practices.

The surprising thing is that usually this time of the year sees a decline in the activities, whereas this year the end of February has been an increase both in activities and memberships, 28 new members having been taken into the association.

TODAY AT THE "Y."
3:30—Boys' game room open.
4:15—Junior "A" gym class and basketball.

5:00—Business Men's Gym class and Volley Ball.

6:15—Scramble Supper, Boys' Bowling and Basketball teams.

7:00—Basket Ball, South Side Sophomores vs. Healeys.

8:00—Basket Ball games in gym.

BRUNDAGE HAS TOLD UNTRUTHS SAYS EDWARDS

The polling lists of the county were taken by a committee of three appointed by the court, the first name omitted and every third name thereon taken as the jury list.

"These were then drawn by the clerks in lots of 100, and lists given to investigators for either side forty-eight hours before being called to the jury box. This plan was approved by the state and the defense.

"No complaint was made during the progress of the entire trial, during the thirty-three days that the jury were confined, as to improper conduct of any person connected with either side, excepting once in which an investigator named Glader, employed by the state.

"He was charged by the defense with being in the habit of standing in a hallway through which the jury were compelled to pass in going to and from the court room, and making remarks in the hearing of the jury prejudicial to the rights of the defendant.

"I called counsel into chambers and told them that unless this practice was stopped I would banish the offender from the courtroom and punish him for contempt of court, and that ended the only complaint during the trial of jury tampering.

"My relations with counsel for both the state and the defense throughout the trial were pleasant; they conducted themselves as gentlemen and as officers of the court.

"I have only the highest words of commendation for James H. (now Judge) Wilkerson and C. Fred Mortimer, state's attorneys of Sangamon county; Charles C. LeForge and Alex F. Brundage. They tried the case as lawyers, and Judge Wilkerson in his final address to the jury extended his compliments to the court for the fair and impartial manner in which the trial had been conducted.

"The facts above set forth are matters of record and susceptible of proof at any time.

"Respectfully submitted,
"CLAIRE C. EDWARDS."
Note by Judge

Judge Edwards answers other statements in a note to former Mayor William Hale Thompson in which he says:

"In my judgment some of the charges that Brundage and Essington are making should be answered.

"I have in mind the charge made by Essington that one Potz, convicted in this court and sentenced to be hanged to save the condemned man, was walking the streets of Chicago a free man.

"This as you know is false. What happened was the death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and Potz is now in the penitentiary at Joliet."

Pledged to Wife
Mrs. Small who was fatally stricken as a result of the strain incident to the trial and the venomous attacks on her husband was besought by the wife of Potz to save the condemned man, who was in the Waukegan jail at the time the governor was being tried in the Waukegan courthouse.

Mrs. Small, deeply moved by the woman's plea, urged her husband to commute the sentence to life imprisonment. A few days later the governor's wife died and the chief executive holding this as a sacred thing, being her last request, commuted the sentence.—Chicago Evening American of Feb. 25, 1924.

WHY IS HE SO SUCCESSFUL?
We'll tell you why.

Every successful man knows enough to STAY INSIDE his income.

He is smart enough to build up a SURPLUS that is later expressed by independence.

You would be surprised if you knew how many successful men invest a part of their incomes with us.

They know that our plan is safe. They know also, that our dividends are higher.

You ought to know it, too.

WEDNESDAY
Kingdom Builders With God

Read Matt. 6:23. Text 6:70. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth.

"It (prayer) is not the surrender of individuality. On the contrary it would seem that true prayer develops at one and the same time a sense of God, of self, and of other men. Coming into the presence of God necessitates a clearer consciousness of men, for men are God's great concern. It gives a new significance to all life."

MEDITATION: The true disciple seeks to live his life in harmony with the life of God. He desires above all else that his own will shall be so under the influence of the will of God that his life and work shall be to further God's will among men. God does not command us but permits us to be co-workers with Him. Human personality is vitally enriched when the right choice is made.

PERSONAL QUESTION: Am I as anxious that God should have my way with me as I am that he should control other men?

PRAYER: Almighty God, let me realize the leading of thy spirit this day, that I may do thy will. Let me move in the way of life with all thy children of good will. May the inspiration of thy grace make me strong and confident, in Christ's name. Amen.

MISTAKES.
Everybody makes mistakes. The people who succeed are not those who make none, but those who learn by their mistakes. And making mistakes is about the only way anybody learns anything. The child never really learns that the stove is hot until he burns his fingers on it. The people who fail are those who become discouraged over their mistakes. They lose heart, and when you lose heart the best way to get over it is to quit doing wrong and begin to do right. It does no good to weep and despair. We progress simply by watching our mistakes and correcting them. Walking is merely a succession of falls. If we fall let us fall forward. And get up and try it again.—Dr. Frank Crane.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

Table Linen.
When laundering table linen do not put it through the wringer, as it makes creases that are almost impossible to remove.

Sink Cabinet.

One of the greatest conveniences for the housekeeper is the sink cabinet, placed directly above the sink where the necessary tools and cleaners are available for any emergency.

Faucet Dishwasher.

The faucet dishwasher which consists of a length of tubing and a spraying nozzle and soap container is one of the most practical helps in dish washing that has yet been devised.

Crisp Crackers.

Cake, crackers, bread and ginger-snaps will retain their crispness and freshness if kept in tin receptacles, but if they are kept in stone jars, they become moist.

White Enamelware.

Toilet ware of white enamel is lighter and safer than china for the nursery.

Wet Tile Floor.

Never let water stand on a tile floor as it will destroy the setting. See that it is rubbed dry with a thick cloth after being mopped.

Brick Dust.

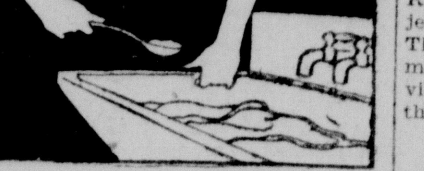

Brick dust, made by beating a soft brick to powder, is useful for removing spots on steel, or for polishing copper or pewter.

Iron Pots.

With the Big Leaguers in the Training Camps

Chicago, March 12.—(By the Associated Press)—It was a chilly day at the baseball training camps in Florida yesterday, but the St. Louis Cardinals at Bradenton kept warm running up a score of 12 to 2 against Brooklyn.

Babe Ruth warmed up in practice at the Yankee camp at New Orleans. After swinging empty six times he connected with a fast one and made his first "over the wall" of the year.

Hank Gowdy, veteran, succumbed to the Florida weather and nursed a stiff neck indoors at the Giants quarters at Sarasota.

The Chicago Americans interpreted Winter Haven as a haven for winter and confined efforts to keeping warm. The day's work for the Cleveland Indians at Lakeland was restricted to loosening up practice and fielding bunts.

The Tigers were given a brief workout at Augusta.

A three day playing excursion from their camp at Orlando into southern Florida has been arranged for the Cincinnati Nationals.

The Chicago Nationals, in California, are preparing for week end contests with various teams.

One-fifth of Farms Had New Occupants

Washington.—Almost a fifth of the country's farms had new occupants in 1922, the Department of Agriculture announced. In most of the corn belt states changes ranged from 10 to 15 per cent.

The chief cause of the turnover is believed by experts to be the attractiveness of new land. Another cause is seen in the extent to which land has been bought and sold for investment and speculation.

In addition, the rapid industrialization of the United States brings about constant changes in market opportunities and necessitates readjustments in

WHEN YOUR BRAIN WORKS BEST.

Among business men and engineers there's an increasing tendency to work at night. Not many years ago, it was the custom—except among lawyers—to "leave business behind at the office" and forget it as much as possible during the evening.

But now it's a common sight to see men in all sorts of industries and professions packing letters and other documents and blueprints into leather portfolios and Boston bags when they leave the office for home.

In other words, the notion is spreading, that the brain functions better at night. This is an ancient belief among writers. The later, the better. Many prefer the hours after midnight.

Does the brain really function better after the sun goes down and darkness blankets the earth? This interesting answer suggests itself:

Thought may be a definite force generated in the brain and broadcast into space radio concerts. In support of this theory, people who are highly organized nervously become uncomfortable in large crowds, as if they are delicate receivers of broadcast thought.

Another illustration rises from memory. Examination day in the high school. Several hundred students scowling and cudgeling their brains intently. The teacher in charge of the room, watching for cheats, develops severe headache after an hour or so, and has to be relieved. She appears to be nervously shell-shocked by the thousands of thoughts darting about the room.

Thought unquestionably is a force. The only argument is whether it vibrates out into space or remains locked within the skull.

If the thought-force really vibrates from the thinker and out into space, the air must be charged with countless millions of these vibrations during daytime. Late at night, most people are asleep and their mental broadcasting stations are shut down until morning.

If so, we have the explanation of why people think faster and more clearly at night than during the day. At night there is less interference, concentration is easier—just as radio becomes best after midnight when few stations are operating.

All this is speculation, of course. But, after all, speculation is the closet we have so far been able to get to the real nature of the great mystery, human thought. We know that we think, but we know not how.

CUTTING WAR LOANS.

A Paris newspaper, L'Eclair, in a recent editorial, makes an ingenious proposal whereby the French debt to the United States might be cut one-third.

The paper advises the French government to claim that one-third of the money spent by France in the United States for war munitions went back into the United States treasury ultimately in the form of excess profits taxes. America, argues the editor, should be satisfied with receiving the "real value" of the munitions, or two-thirds of the nominal amount of the claims.

The idea of getting even two-thirds from France, in payment of her war bill, is encouraging to American taxpayers. It is some time since there was any satisfactory intimation that France intended paying anything. It is conceivable that, in certain contingencies, Uncle Sam might agree to accept two-thirds of the debt in full payment. But hardly on the grounds proposed by this ingenious editor.

He might be reminded that the money involved was paid directly to the munition manufacturers out of the United States treasury, and the treasury borrowed it from the American public and has to pay it back to the bondholders, and in the meantime is paying them interest on their loans. It is to the individual American creditors who bought these war bonds "till it hurt" that France owes the money. They are not much interested in such juggling of accounts and upsetting of old contracts as the Paris editor suggests. And they know that if France does not pay, the bonds will have to be paid—through the United States treasury, as agent—out of new funds provided by American taxpayers.

If that one-third business is insisted on, however, France might be advised to apply the same kind of reckoning to all the supplies bought by our government in France, during the war, at French war prices, and place to Uncle Sam's credit the difference between those prices and the "real value" of the supplies.

INVESTMENT SUSPICIONS.

Suspicion may be "an unworthy state of mind" in some connections, but it is the only reasonable state of mind where investments are concerned, as is shown by the loss of half a billion dollars to the American public last year.

If there is anybody in the country whose judgment about investments should be trustworthy, it is Secretary of the Treasury Mellon who, besides looking after Uncle Sam's money, has dealt all his life with private investors, and is said to have several hundred million dollars of his own profitably invested. He gives eleven warnings to prospective investors, in substances as follows:

Don't buy stocks in mines you know nothing about.

Ditto regarding oil wells. Only the rich can afford oil speculation.

Look out for schemers taking advantage of new inventions—radio, for example—to float worthless stocks.

If you buy property, buy near at home.

Distrust new companies organized to "sell by mail."

Investigate new manufacturing methods for yourself before investing.

Suspect any one who urges you to "invest quick, or to will be too late."

Suspect investments offering special cash discounts or stock bonuses.

Distrust tips on the stock market. If they are worth while, the possessors would not let you have them.

Only the rich can afford to speculate—not the man with a family to support.

Distrust companies organized to imitate the success of somebody else.

BUILD MORE AUTOS.

American factories in 1923 produced 3,635,767 passenger autos, compared with 2,339,768 the year before, final figures show. And it looks as if 1924 will smash another record. In January three and a half times as many passenger autos were manufactured as in January, 1922.

How long will it be until there'll be similar figures for airplane production?

The boldness of the present-day girl must have been exaggerated. Here are nearly two months of Leap Year gone, and no perceptible increase in the marriage rate.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

6 Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 22—THE LOST TREASURE

So the king got the boots and put them on

The Twins told the king of Beanstalk Land that they had found a box buried in the cornfield, which must be his lost treasure.

But the queen whispered, "Have a care, husband! These are the same creatures that jumped out of the seven-league boots and stole our throne from us. Perhaps this is another trick to get us away so they can set themselves up as rulers in our place."

"Tush!" said the king. "Don't be silly!"

"Not so fast," said the court cat. "The queen may be right. Add you can thank me for putting the thieves out. I took them for a ride and lost them in a drain."

"And you can thank us," added the lords and ladies, "for not staying one minute where such dreadful things were going on. We hurried away as fast as we could go."

"Thank you for nothing at all of you!" declared the king. "I know what I know. The two children were right, and both the queen and I have slept much better since we have undone our wrong, and helped the people we were unkind to."

"Oh," cried Nancy, "please don't talk so much. The treasure is all uncovered and someone may take it before we get there."

"Of course!" exclaimed the king. "Come, everybody! And then he said to the Twins, 'Do you care if I borrow your magic boots? They are in that big chest.'"

The Twins had forgotten all about the seven-league boots that they had taken from one of the Beanstalk giants.

"No, sir," said Nick politely, "only when you are through with them, please send them back to the giant to whom they belong. I don't know his name, but his wife wears a checkered sunbonnet and his daughter had a rose bush, and they keep a cow."

"I know the very one!" declared the beanstalk king, and I—"

"Oh, do stop talking!" begged Nancy. "The scarecrow will think we are not coming, and he'll be so nervous he'll lose all his straw."

So the king got his boots and put them on, then he took the Twins on his shoulders and strode away to the cornfield, leaving the queen and the cat and the lords and ladies and the twenty stiff servants to follow if they wished.

"Dear, dear!" sighed the scarecrow with relief when they arrived. "I thought you never, never were coming. I've shivered so much that my broomstick back will never be straight again."

"Never mind," said the king. "If this box is my lost treasure, you shall have new stuffing and a new coat and one of my old crowns as a mark of honor, and a new backbone also."

"Oh, thank you, sir!" exclaimed the scarecrow. "And if you please, sir, would you mind giving a few truffles to the pig who did the digging. He's an old friend of mine, and so kind-hearted!"

"Certainly!" promised the king. "From my own table. And now for the treasure!"

He set the Twins on the ground and took hold of the big iron ring in the box. Then he gave a great jerk.

Up flew the lid, and there lay the long-lost treasure of the king of Beanstalk Land!

MILL FODDER

BY BERTON BRALEY.

(More than a million children between 8 and 16 are employed in American industry.)

A million weary children who labor all the day.

A million weary children with scanty chance to play.

In fields and mines and factories throughout this wealthy land.

The labor of these little folks is ever in demand.

Oh, we're "enlightened people" and all of that—but still

A million children labor in mine and field and mill.

Long, long before the school-bell rings their toiling has begun,

And when the "gang" is home from school and study hours are done

And it is time for jocular sport in God's good open air,

A million weary children can take no pleasure there.

They're bent above their daily task "acquiring craft and skill,"

A million weary children in field and mine and mill.

On backs too frail for burdens the load of toil is laid,

And hands that should be light and free are fettered to a trade;

Lips meant for careless whistling are set in weary lines,

And there's the everlasting ache in tired, childish spines,

And all too-tired eyes of youth are watching stamp and drill.

A million weary children in shop and mine and mill!

Our trade may grow and prosper, expanding on and on,

But while a million children are stunted, pale and wan,

While business waxes fatter on laborers like these,

No decent human conscience can wholly be at ease.

It is a monstrous evil, excuse it how we will—

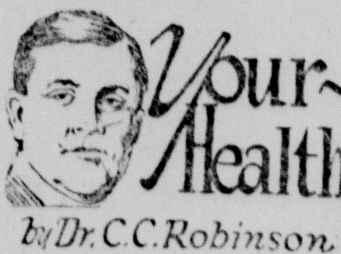

A million weary children in mine and field and mill!

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep.—Ps. 107: 23, 24.

All things in the natural world symbolize God, yet none of them speak of Him but in broken and imperfect words.—Henry Ward Beecher.

AVOIDING FAT

The day of guesswork in regard to diet is past. A careful study of your case by a real physician will determine your standing in the health column.

If you are fat or getting fat, he will be able by food tests and the X-ray, to direct your daily habits, so that real food satisfaction may be obtained without increasing the belt line.

There is no need of getting fat except possibly through disease. If you are not lazy, if your habits conform to the rules of health in regard to proper diet and your exercise program is carried out the way you carry out your eating or business program, a normal body with fat, muscle, and weight properly distributed will result.

In the desire to be what you are not lies the danger of doing the thing for which you will be sorry. Do not under any consideration be tempted to indulge in any fat faker's nostrums.

Common foodstuffs may be divided into certain groups which in a measure correspond to the needed chemical elements in the body. There are food chemical companies which advertise their foods supply all these natural elements, so your life processes will be fully complete by using their compounds.

But I do not advise any such treatment. Science has solved the digestive problems in a most conclusive manner. You can avoid being fat by an intelligent understanding of proper food values and how to govern your life and its digestive system.

STRAIGHT DOPE ON THE RADIO. (Wherein the noted sport philosopher gets all steamed up about this poetry of motion stuff.)

Well, I suppose you folks read all about the scurvy trick foreign officials played on the good old U. S. A. in them Olympic skiing tests when one of our boys leaped away with first place but was dropped back among the also rans because he didn't have no style.

Now I don't know any more about the art of skiing—or is it some kind of fancy embroidery?—than a ring-tailed orangutan does about operating a chafing dish with balloon tires; but I do know that if you finish first in anything, and finish there without the aid of a blackjack or Congressional influence, the cut glass trophy and the move close up belong to you, no matter if you are as minus of style as wet ashes are of nutrition.

What's style gotta do with superiority, anyhow? Abe Lincoln had about as much style as a New England turnip, but they'll be hanging green garlands on his monuments long after Vernon Castle's name has ceased to give the bird girls in the New Era Hand Laundry a thrill.

From what I have been able to observe old man Rockefeller didn't climb to the top of the financial world with a pair of graceful ankles and a full set of parlor gestures, either, and it is only on rare occasions that you ever hear of one of his checks being turned back on account of lack of style.

These European folks are nice enough and all that, but they've got some ideas on sports that are funnier than Eddie Foy in a pink kimono. For instance, they used to think Bombadier Wells was a great heavyweight because he went down so beautifully after taking a punch. Take that one and calm it down, mates.

A knockout is a knockout in any religion and whether you take it with an artistic bow or double up like a lead pipe wrapped around a left-hander's head is one and the same crime, and, boys, be careful when you carry hint out.

Polarine

THE PERFECT MOTOR OIL

Minimizes Carbon Deposit

Every motorist knows and dreads the ravages of carbon. He knows that it fouls plugs, causes knocking and racks the engine with pre-ignition.

60% of Mid West motorists have learned by experience that Polarine minimizes carbon deposits.

One motorist writes: "I have been using Polarine exclusively and my engine is not corroded with carbon deposit and residue."

Another says: "Since using Polarine, we have reduced our repair bills materially, and on examining our motors from time to time find only a very little carbon."

Dozens of other letters speak in the same strain.

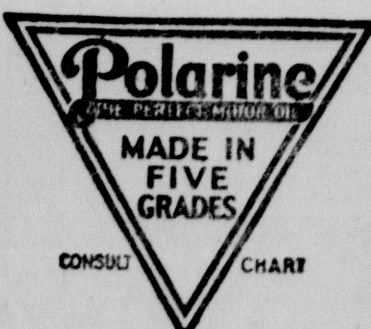

The reason is clear. Dyke (a leading automotive authority) says, "To reduce carbon to a minimum, the lubricating oil must be of high quality and of correct body for the piston design and the lubricating system of your engine."

Polarine is scientifically correct. It maintains its body and will not break down at working temperatures. In creating it, petroleum chemists co-operated with engine designers. Every mechanical as well as every chemical factor was considered. The result is summed up in the chart at the left.

Follow this chart and have perfect, scientific lubrication—minimum carbon deposit—and lowest repair bills.

Use Polarine. Change your motor oil every 500 miles and refill with the correct grade of fresh Polarine. You will add power and life to your motor.

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

DEAR JACK:

There are some things to me in life that are utterly inexplicable, and perhaps the one that is most so, is the fact that a man of your calibre and personality is able or has been able to draw unto yourself two such women as Paula Perier and Leslie Lamilton. Both are too good for you. I've had a letter from Paula from which I know she went to your house absolutely decided to put the matter to rest, and take her child with her as she shook the dust of Albany from her feet.

Then she saw Leslie, and was conquered. She saw how Leslie loved her child. She realized how hard it would be for her to give the boy his proper care, and she made her great sacrifice, not for you, old man—I don't think you entered into it at all—the sacrificed herself for Leslie and the baby.

This may be somewhat startling to your egotism. I presume you have been thinking all the while it was because of love for you that Paula Perier did such a remarkable thing when she was in your town.

On the contrary, I'm thinking that Paula Perier could not have forgotten you, if you were any more a actor in her life, she could not have left the boy with Leslie at all. She said nothing to me in her letter about seeing you. In fact, she only wrote me a note to tell me she had given up the boy forever.

I don't know why I'm writing this to you, Jack. I ought to let you suffer, for I have a distinct feeling that you'll get into trouble again. You're one of those had little boys who can't keep out of it. Perhaps that's the great reason I'm writing to you, and all that I've said is but preliminary to what I'm going to put on paper now, which is both a promise and a threat: If ever you do get into any trouble in which a woman is concerned again, I won't look to me for help for I'll make an example of you if possible.

The whole moving picture colony in Hollywood is saying Dick Summers is a love with Paula Perier, and some of the members think she will marry him. I don't think so. Since I have seen here and have met her again I have come to the conclusion that she will never have enough trust in anyone of the male sex to marry him. She will be confirmed in this decision I am sure, after seeing Leslie and realizing that only on ignorance is her bliss founded.

My business is almost finished here and I shall be back home soon. I'd like very much to come and see you, but you have made it impossible for me to do so. However, you might tell Leslie that you have heard from me, and that I hope she would permit me to send to her my very great regard and best wishes always. SYD.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

"THE UNREDEEMED."

The writer in last evening's Telegraph who signs himself, "In the Lord's Cause," tells us very truly that nothing can be gained by insults and slams. And I have no intention of insulting and slaming anyone.

I have respect and reverence for the church and would certainly put nothing in its way of doing its duty as the Lord intended it should for the eternal welfare of humanity. It is the church's duty and right to preach the gospel of love and justice and charity. It should not be interfered with in the performance of its sacred duties. It ought to have a free hand, and in fact, it is the intention of the American people and the scope of the law that it should.

At the same time the church has no right to go outside of its sphere to interfere with the rights and liberties of the people whose conscience does not require them to abstain from all amusement on Sunday, which does not in any way infringe upon its own rights and liberties. As I understand it, the federal and state constitution guarantees freedom of conscience to all without distinction. Hence, the church has the full right to exercise its functions without interference from outsiders and those outsiders have the same right to be exempt from interference on the part of the church.

Again, if there is a conflict between the church and the theater undoubtedly the stronger will prevail. If there is no conflict between them they can exist together in mutual friendship, charity and co-operation.

If my memory does not fail me, according to the federal census, sixty per cent of the people of the United States do not belong to the church. They do not interfere with the church members in the exercise of their liberty of conscience. And they are in the majority. Why then should the church which is in the minority, interfere with them in the exercise of their liberty or conscience. Minority and charity for all, redeemed and unredeemed alike. And, individually, I have no right to say who are redeemed whether they attend the church or the theater or both. I think it is safe to say, "there is so much in the best of us and good in the worst of us that it behooves any of us to speak bad of the rest of us."

MAN IN THE STREET.

ROOM FOR ALL.

Dear Sir:—I have read in your paper a good deal about Sunday shows and must say that the home is the foundation of the nation and if parents are willing that their children should attend Sunday shows, I would not criticize them. If we hark back to Puritan days when it was unlawful to kiss your wife on Sunday, our show would still be exempt, as the Sabbath was considered over at sun down. When in Rome do as Romans do. I do not think that a person that goes to church because there is no place else to go is doing himself any good. Our clergymen are the best educated class of people in the world. Let them increase their Sunday night congregations by their good sermons and induce people to come there rather than at a show; then they have accomplished something.

If they have patience maybe they will have some help, as there is a secret order that is opposed to the negro, Jew, Irishman. These classes are the best entertainers and comedians there are in vaudeville and by getting rid of them they will do considerable to abolish shows. These people are made the butt of a good many jokes and I guess they consider this secret order one of the jokes.

There is room in this world for all of us and if you go to the show Sunday night and dispel some of the cares that have accumulated for a week by a good laugh, you have spent fifty cents in a good cause. Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone.

Cobb Seeks Game Protection

Irvin S. Cobb, of Kentucky, one of the most famous American writers, also well-known as a sportsman, is seeking to prevent the extinction of the country's wild fowl. Speaking of the need of protection for America's migratory birds, Mr. Cobb said:

"Not so long ago our country was a sportsman's paradise. Wild fowl bred in millions in our marsh lands. They had practically unlimited areas for nesting, resting and feeding. These birds furnished healthful recreation for the hunter of moderate means. From the standpoint of their food value alone, they constituted a great natural resource."

"Today, vast drainage operations have almost deprived wild fowl of their natural resting and breeding grounds and the average hunter of any chance to bag game. At present, the best shooting areas for wild fowl are almost all in the hands of rich men's clubs or wealthy individuals. If the draining of marsh lands continues, the breeding areas will be hopelessly inadequate to maintain the country's remaining wild life. These drainage operations have resulted in little gain and in some cases in positive loss, as much of the land thus reclaimed has been almost worthless, while the immense cost has saddled the farmers in many districts with heavy burdens."

"We want to save the country's wild fowl for future generations. We are trying to democratize again the sport of shooting so that what ultimately belongs to the nation shall be the property of rich and poor alike. It is for these reasons that Federal and state authorities, national, state and local gunning clubs and individual gunners have combined to present to Congress the Game Refuge Bill. This comes before the House in a few weeks and deserves the support of every citizen on patriotic grounds as well as those of fair play. We are urging every one to write his Congressman and Senator to support the Game Refuge Bill."

Under the Game Refuge Bill each hunter would pay one dollar for a license. This money would be turned into the Treasury and constitute a special fund known as the "Migratory-Bird Protection Fund."

Approximately one-half of it would be used for the purchase of areas suitable for waterfowl. Some of these would act as refuges on which a shot would never be fired; others would be open to the public, where the man of ordinary means could shoot under suitable regulations. The other half of the money would be used to care for and protect our migratory birds, both game and insectivorous, and make more effective the treaty for that purpose between this country and Canada.

Not one cent of the money to be derived from the Game Refuge Bill will come from the general tax payer. The man who hunts migratory game birds foots the bill, thus insuring the perpetuation of his sport.

Many national organizations have endorsed the Game Refuge Bill. Among these are: The American Game Protective Association, the National Association of Audubon Societies, the American Forestry Association, the National Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Legion, and the National Grange.

For the convenience of railroads and business in general, standard time was established by mutual agreement in 1883, and by this calculation trains were run and local time was regulated.

Invents New Game of Stalling to Get His Team Needed Games

Galesburg, Ill. — Repudiating the charge of "stalling" in basketball, Athletic Director P. J. Schissler of Lombard College explained the strategy by which his team has been winning games, in spite of its inaccuracies in basket shooting.

"This team is composed of the most inaccurate bunch of basket shooters I have ever had the pleasure of seeing," Schissler said. "The only thing for them to do is to use their speed on foot, working the ball down into the enemy's territory and cage the ball from short distances."

He said publicity had been given "stalling" since Lombard was first accused of stalling in the game with Knox, Jan. 22 when the Lombard captain, Swanson, held the ball 13 minutes and later scored a few feet from the Knox goal with the ball under his right arm for eight minutes. Lombard won 11 to 1.

"We invented a new style of play which calls for short passes and shooting the ball to the rear under certain conditions," Schissler said. "In such situations the opposing teams must come down after the ball and if they fail we hold it."

"Basket ball men might consider what they would do if they had an unusually fast team which could not shoot baskets at long range. They probably would do as we have done. Lombard plays an aggressive game until the other team is in the lead. Then we get possession of the ball and keep it until the opposing team takes it from us."

"Lombard never even thought of inventing a stalling game. Stalling in the last few minutes of play came in shortly after basket ball was started so we cannot be accused of starting it. We object to a stalling game as much as anyone. The game should not be slowed-up, but when one team is in the lead surely it has the right to demand that the opposition force the issue."

methods. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

These methods have proved effective in many tests. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists the world over have long advised its use. Now careful people of some 50 nations employ this modern method.

Results you see and feel

Pepsodent brings conspicuous results. It does more than fight film. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to better neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva, to better digest starch deposits on teeth. These combined effects bring a new conception of clean teeth.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film! See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Why Not You?

When millions now attain so much by fighting film on teeth

Careful people, the world over, use a new tooth cleaning method. You see the results in whiter teeth in every circle now.

It means new beauty, new safety, new delights. It means to children new protection against troubles you have suffered.

Let this free test prove the benefits it brings.

Film mars beauty

That cloud on teeth is film. At first the film is viscous. You can feel it now. Soon it discolors, forming those dingy coats.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it, so the coats may long remain.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Such troubles are almost universal with people who don't fight film.

Easy to combat

Now that film is easy to combat. Dental science has found two Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Colonel Holmes, soldier and adventurer, returns to England, his native land, when war with Holland is declared. His Grace of Buckingham hires Holmes to abduct the actress, Sylvia Parquharson. It is dark when the Colonel carries her to the house Buckingham has rented.

Upon their arrival Holmes is horrified to see that Sylvia is an old sweetheart.

The servants of the Duke render the Colonel unconscious.

When Buckingham attempts to embrace Sylvia, her dress falls from her throat, revealing a purple blotch, token of the plague, which is spreading so rapidly in London. The Duke and his servants flee.

The Colonel remains to nurse Sylvia and save her life. When the doctor pronounces her out of danger Holmes asks the whereabouts of Buckingham.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Gone with the rest," the doctor informed him. "He left Town for the North a week ago, aroused to a sudden sense of his duty as Lord Lieutenant of York by the fact that a French lackey in his household was stricken with the plague. He'll be safe enough in York, no doubt."

Acting upon a sudden impulse, Dr. Beamish left the room, and mounted the stairs again—for all that his time was short and his patients many. Dismissing Mrs. Dalloves upon some trivial errand to the kitchen, he remained closeted for five minutes with Miss Sylvester. That was the name by which he knew her, the name by which she had chosen to make herself known to both doctor and nurse.

Whether it was a result of what he said to her in those five minutes, or whether other influences were at work, within an hour of the doctor's departure, Holmes was sought by Mrs. Dalloves with a message that Miss Sylvester was risen, and desired to speak with him.

The eyes of that kindly nurse, sharpened by solicitude, saw him turn pale and tremble at the summons.

He was washed and shaven, tolerably dressed, and his long, well-combed, golden-brown hair hung in long, smooth ringlets to the snowy collar which Mrs. Dalloves had found time to wash and iron for him.

He found Miss Sylvester seated by the open window, where he himself had sat throughout the greater part of those five days and six nights when he had so unceasingly watched over her to beat hungry death from her pillow. She occupied a great chair set for her there by Mrs. Dalloves, a rug about her knees. She wore that gown of ivory white in which she had been carried to this evil house, and her chestnut hair had been dressed with care and was intertwined with a thread of pearls.

Wistfully she looked up at him as he entered, then away through the open window into the hot sunlight that scorched the almost empty street.

He closed the door, advanced a pace or two, and halted.

"You sent for me," she said, "else I should not have ventured to intrude." And he stood now like a groom waiting orders.

"I sent for you, sir, that I might acknowledge the great debt in which you have placed me; to thank you for your care of me, for your disregard of your own peril in tending me. In short, sir, for my life, which had been lost without you."

She looked at him suddenly as she ceased.

"You owe me no thanks—no thanks at all," he said, and his voice was almost shrill. "I but sought to undo the evil I had done."

"That . . . was before the plague came to my rescue. In what you did then, you sought at the risk of your life to undo the evil I had done."

He closed the door, advanced a pace or two, and halted.

Buff Orpingtons That Are Bred to Lay

Of all the beautiful and profitable fowls no variety fills the bill better than Single Comb Buff Orpingtons. Their soft golden buff color, always clean and bright, their immense size, often running to twelve pounds each, and their ability to lay in cold weather as well as in warm weather, makes them the premier fowl of the day. After years of culling and careful breeding we are ready to sell eggs from hens that fill the basket and lay around.

"BEGINNER'S LUCK"

Chicago—A former state's attorney, now engaged in private practice, was appointed by the court to defend a penniless prisoner.

Court attaches, for a joke, told the defendant his lawyer was just a beginner. But in only 30 minutes the attorney had won a verdict of "not guilty."

"I can't pay you, boss," his grateful client said. "But take the name of this horse and bet on him."

"But I never play the races," his counsel insisted.

"Well, do it now," replied the defendant. "If you're as good a beginner at the races as you're at law, you'll show him."

This announcement will meet with the strong approval of school authorities generally, as such a course has been a much-needed factor in the preparation and development of regularly certificated applicants for teaching positions in the public schools.

The following appears in the March issue of the Educational Press Bulletin:

"It has become more and more apparent that the teachers of one-room schools are to be recruited from the young persons who are graduating from our high schools. Our best trained teachers do not seek these positions. Everyone believes that rural school children should have just as well prepared teachers as are provided for city schools, but we must face the facts. If these one-room schools are to be taught mainly by high school graduates it is very essential that the teachers should have training in how to organize and conduct a one-room school. All of the State teacher-training institutions are planning to give short summer courses for high school graduates who expect to teach in the rural schools. These courses have been prepared with great care and will give these young people that kind of preparation which they must have in order to avoid gross mistakes. The high school graduates who want to take such a six weeks' course can get complete information by writing to the president of the school which they wish to attend.
